

KEVIN LAWTON

Founder

The New Warehouse Podcast

MEET KEVIN IN PERSON

BIOGRAPHY

Kevin has 14 years of experience in the warehousing industry. He found a passion for learning and teaching more in the industry which led to the start of his podcast, The New Warehouse Podcast, in 2019. He has experience in inventory control, operations management, continuous improvement and has run his own e-commerce fulfillment operation. He also teaches as an Adjunct Professor in Supply Chain at Rider University. He recently founded The Warehouse Innovators Community to bring warehouse operators together to discover, discuss and evaluate technology in the warehouse industry. He is a firm believer that Warehouses Are Sexy and continues his efforts to spread that message.

HUMANS, ROBOTS, AND DATA: ORCHESTRATING THE NEW WAREHOUSE ECOSYSTEM

True innovation isn't just about implementing the flashiest new automation; it's about seamlessly integrating human workers, intelligent robotics, and actionable data. Join this session to learn how to design and manage a cohesive, tech-enabled warehouse ecosystem that maximizes both operational productivity and human potential.

JOIN THE SESSION